

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SAMIE WILLIAMS, 465 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

SOME HARM IN MOONLIGHT

Scientists Have Been Giving the Matter Attention and Now Are Out With Explanation.

The alleged harmfulness of moonlight is at last receiving scientific attention. It seems that the light of the moon, being reflected, is polarized; that is, the vibrations are in one plane instead of all planes, as in light coming directly from its source. It is also said that it has less germicidal power than direct light, and that decay is therefore quicker.

All this may be true, and it may explain some of the folklore as to moonlight. We have so long believed these tales to be the myths of primitive peoples that we are not inclined to take any suggestions in this line seriously. They are really mistaken attempts at the scientific explanation of phenomena noticed for the first time.

The folk-tales seem to have originated in lands of very clear atmosphere, and it is extremely doubtful whether in northern misty climates moonlight has any peculiar or nervous effect one way or the other. Still we are often surprised at the facts elicited from still more bizarre investigations. Surely polarized light must have injurious rectal effects, and it might be well to find out that much.

Had Enough of War.

After a season in the trenches, knee deep in mud and water, yet not having seen one of the enemy in all that time, Private Cox was invalided home. After relating all the adventures which he and his comrades had experienced, he concluded, "And now I come home full of bloody rheumatism and I hope I never see a bloody battle again."

HAS PEOPLE'S TRUST

Country Satisfied With the Work of Congress.

Tariff, Honestly and Skillfully Drawn, Has Set a New Mark in History—Currency Bill Also a Great Achievement.

The first great achievement of the Sixty-third congress, called in special session in the summer of 1913, was the revision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. We have heard from the protected interests much criticism of the wisdom of the Underwood act and many gloomy prophecies of its ultimate effect upon American industries. But, "our enemies themselves being judges," this law is free from the most serious defect of the tariffs that preceded it, for it was drawn honestly. There has not been a breath of suspicion cast upon the good intent that inspired it. There has been no rubber scandal, no woolen scandal, no glove scandal, no sugar scandal, in consequence of its making. And in this respect it has set a new mark in the tariff history of fifty years.

The second great achievement of the congress was the currency bill. This measure, put into operation under the most adverse circumstances, has the unique distinction of commanding the support both of Wall street and the West. It is but the recognition of plain fact to note that the causes of this gratifying result were primarily moral. When congress met neither house contained a single member who was eminent for his knowledge of finance. But the congress, with the party of the South and the West in control, had honestly revised the tariff downward, and dealt with sugar, wool and lumber with wool in a truly national spirit. Men trusted it. As a result, the best knowledge and experience of bankers, financiers, economists and merchants were freely poured out. Radicals and reactionaries alike forgot their prejudices and came together to work out common needs in a patriotic way. And the world has applauded the result.

Abundance and Prosperity.

In four months deposits in Kansas City banks have increased more than $28,000,000 and are now larger than ever before. There has never been as large an increase in any similar period of any previous year. The record gives evidence of the prosperity and the wealth of the territory of which Kansas City is the financial and commercial center. The profits arising from last year's big wheat crop and the business stimulated thereby in large measure accounts for the big increase. The present indications are that another big crop will be raised this year. Never before was the substantial basis of prosperity more solid in the West than it is at the present time, and there is every reason to expect a year of expanding trade and good times in Kansas City territory.

Wilson: Statesman and Politician.

In discussing Woodrow Wilson as statesman and politician we take up the latter aspect of his administration of the presidency, for the reason that no man's statesmanlike qualities ever benefited his fellow-beings unless he was a good politician to begin with. Statesmanship is concerned with ends; politics with means. To arrive at the first one must command the second. The president's leadership of the legislative branch of the government has eventuated in the most constructive session of congress in fifty years because he is a consummate politician.

Worked for Public Good.

The future of democracy, after all, is conditioned primarily on the moral qualities of a people. In seeking the reason why the present congress has written more constructive legislation than any other in half a century we have not far to look. It is to be found not in any new-fangled theories but in the possession of the plain, old-fashioned virtues of honesty and regard for the public good. The nation says "Well done!"

One Thing Pretty Sure.

The McKinley example of prompt achievement is precisely what the people are today determined shall be followed by the Republican president certain to enter the White House on March 4, 1917. This name is of no consequence.—New York Evening Mail.

Any servant of the interests will answer the purpose, but his name will be of the greatest consequence. The first letter of it will be Monopoly Tariff, of course.

Realize His Worth.

Now it is Senator Underwood, and the Democrats in the senate will welcome his able leadership.

Did All That Was to Be Done.

Judging by the results accomplished, the session of congress recently closed was more or less of a routine session. President Wilson's desire to carry out a further constructive program by passing conservation and other measures was not realized. In fact, there was a plain reaction against executive pressure, after the uniform concessions of the previous sessions. But routine matters, after all, are the most necessary. And congress can congratulate itself that it did the business that had to be done.

The Foreign Trade.

Imports are decreasing and exports are still on the increase, according to the most recent statistics of the department of commerce. While the increase in the foreign trade does not mean a great deal compared with the total volume of domestic trade, which is seventeen times as great in normal times, nevertheless it has provided so much work for those who need employment that the present results cannot fail to arouse the most extreme satisfaction.

IMMENSE QUANTITY OF WHEAT TIED UP

There Will Still, However, Be a Heavy Deficit of the World's Normal Crop.

A grain expert who has been watching the grain markets and the world's grain fields for a number of years, says:

"There is at the present time about two billion bushels of wheat, the production of the countries at war, tied up. This is about one-half the world's total production of wheat, which is four billion bushels. One writer argues that, granting that the warring nations produce a one-half crop in the coming year, a deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit of one billion bushels will rest are the United States, Canada, and Argentina. The combined output of these three countries is only 1,249,000,000, their exportable surplus would of course be much less, so it can easily be seen that the question is not one to be easily solved and it behooves all the above countries to increase their respective productions as much as they possibly can, for when the war is over and trade begins to re-establish itself and the nations undergo a process of rehabilitation, the demand for all breadstuffs will be enormous.

"During the three years following the declaration of peace the farmers of all neutral wheat-producing countries will have ample opportunity to market their wheat at good prices, and it may safely be assumed that the demand will be heavy. Canada has an unusual opportunity in that she has the natural environment for wheat production; she is under the protection of the British flag, and she will not be molested upon the water to any great extent; she can increase her acreage and greatly enhance her production. In other words, she can become a far greater wheat-producing country than she is at the present time."

If the summing-up as made by this expert be correct, is there not the very best reason for the continued effort that is being made by the Government of the Dominion of Canada to secure settlers on the productive vacant lands of the country? Not only are these lands capable of producing high class wheat in large quantities, but cattle, pigs, sheep and horses also do well. The climate is admirably suited.—Advertisement.

GET FAR FROM ALL DANGER

In the Breeding Season Condors Roost in the Most Broken and Inaccessible Places.

There is a splendid specimen of the male condor in a glass case in the bird room of the Children's museum in Brooklyn. Though he stands 2½ feet high, the spread of his wings is nine feet.

"The condors live throughout the Andes, principally in Chile and Peru. Their favorite haunts are the level of perpetual snow," writes Miss Anna B. Chilling in the Museum News. "During a portion of the year condors roost in the trees on the lower mountain slopes, but in the breeding season (the summer months of November and December) they retire to the most broken and terrific precipices, 16,000 to 15,000 feet above the sea level, where no other creature can dwell. There, on a ledge or shelf of rock, the female lays two white eggs nearly four inches in length. Sometimes she places a few sticks around them, perhaps to keep them from rolling out of place.

"After about seven weeks, in February or early in March, the young hatch, entirely covered with soft white down that afterward turns to a brown color."

Canada is Calling You to her Rich Wheat Lands

She extends to Americans a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

This year wheat is higher than Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help to feed the world by tilling some of her soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think what you can make with wheat around $1 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming is fully as profitable as industry as grain growing.

The Government this year is asking farmers to put increased acreage into grain. Military service is not compulsory in Canada but there is a great demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for service.
